Andre Wilsenach wins Regulator of the Year in The World Online Gambling Law Report Awards

Alderney Gambling Control Commission Chief Executive, Andre Wilsenach was declared this year's Regulator of the Year at the World Online Gambling Law Report Awards 2008 which took place at Tylney Hall in Hampshire, on 16.June.

“Andre has played – and continues to play- a significant role in the development of regulation in this complex global online industry,” said Lindsey Greig, World Online Gambling Law Report, managing editor. “He has had to develop a regulatory framework in an area where there are no established precedents and where internet business models are constantly developing.”

Andre has played a significant role not just in developing Alderney's regulatory framework but in the continuing challenge to develop an international regulatory framework through his work with the International Association of Gaming Regulators and Attorneys.

Lawyer of the Year was won by Wulf Hambach, a partner with Munich based law firm, Hambach and Hambach. Wulf has developed a reputation as a leading expert on the complex mix of federal, state and EU law which impacts on the regulation of remote gambling in Germany.

The World Online Gambling Law Report Awards have been created to acknowledge those in the industry who have made a significant contributed to the development of a regulated industry which combines the excitement of sports betting, poker and casino games with a commitment to transparency, integrity and fair play.

Our 2008 Award winners received their awards at the World Online Gambling Law Report Summer Retreat Awards Dinner at the Tylney Hall Hotel in Hampshire.

World Online Gambling Law Report is the monthly newsletter for the industry focusing on the legal, regulatory, financial and commercial issues affecting operators, suppliers and regulators.
